

From the Office of
Senator Henry M. Jackson (D., Wash.)

For immediate release
Monday, June 13, 1960

Senator Henry M. Jackson, chairman of the Subcommittee on National Policy Machinery, announced today that former Army Chief of Staff General Maxwell D. Taylor, will testify in open session before the Subcommittee Tuesday afternoon, June 14.

General Taylor is a witness in the series of Subcommittee hearings focused on the National Security Council and the problems of organization of the Departments of State and Defense.

Jackson said: "We have invited General Taylor because of his broad experience and thoughtful reflections on the subject, to help the Subcommittee determine the adequacy of our national security machinery to handle the critical issues of survival."

The hearing will be held at 2:00 p.m. in Room 3302, New Senate Office Building.

The Subcommittee on National Policy Machinery was established last year for the purpose of making the first full review of the national security process since the passage of the National Security Act of 1947. Its study is nonpartisan.

Serving with Jackson on the Subcommittee are Senators Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.), Edmund S. Muskie (D., Me.), Karl E. Mundt (R., S. Dak.) and Jacob K. Javits (R., N.Y.).
